He had planned his long holiday after he wound up his pending work. Iqbal might be doing selective work for some years now but never compromises when it comes to his dedication. "I live, eat and breathe my work," admits Mr. Perfectionist.

Like Iqbal, his demure wife Sneha too has been busy with her work. She teaches at Billa Bong primary school. So Christmas was the perfect time for them to take an off for a vacation. Air tickets, hotel reservations and the other nitty-gritty's of the tour were chalked out. But the trip had to be called at the last minute.

"My parents in-law live in Kashmir. First they heard about the blasts in Bangkok and advised us to not go ahead with the plan. But Iqbal convinced them," says Sneha. But they hit the panic button after the terror attacks in Mumbai. Since Muslims are being looked at very suspiciously, Iqbal's parents didn't want their son to land up in any problem.

"Yes, we were scheduled to go to Bangkok but I'm asked by my parents to stay put," says the obedient son. The Khan will now have to re-work his holiday plans.
