

TV celebs celebrates Navratra

Source: Daily Bhaskar | Last Updated 12:57(10/10/10)

Comment | Share

f Like

f Share

retweet

Buzz 0

Buzz up! vote now

Television is a herald through which celebration of festival becomes more fun. Navratra is one such festival which is widely celebrated across the nation and goes on for nine nights. Even the daily soaps witness few such colorful episodes.

Read on to find out what your favorite Television celebs are doing during Navratra this year and the tender memories of this festival.

Prayag Dandia Being a Gujarati, Navratra is my favorite festival – it's all about dance, food and fun. Our family fasts for 9 days and on the 10th day Dusera is celebrated. After offering our prayers to God we go out and play "Garba" with friends and family members. This year I will not be able to celebrate Navratra with my friends due to hectic shooting schedules but I have decided not to feel bad about it. The grand Dandiya sequence being planned on 'Ram

Other articles

- Sangini is shot in various locations
- To teacher's with love
- Raksha Bandhan for celebrities
- Shweta to shake a leg on Sangini

Milaayi Jodi' should be more than compensation!

Iqbal Khan says that "I celebrate Navratra but I don't fast however I love to eat the food meant for people fasting during that time. While I'm on shoot my friends send me the "kutu ke aate wala roti, Swang ke chawal, Singhare ke aate ki puriyan & sabudana ki kheer etc.I love these foods as it's different from the regular stuff which we eat. As mostly during the Dandiya times we are shooting so never got an opportunity to play Dandiya. I wish everyone happy Navratra".