

Indiantelevision.com's News Headlines

Zee TV to launch mafia don fiction on 28 July

Indiantelevision.com Team

(22 July 2008 8:30 pm)

MUMBAI: Zee TV is launching a fiction-based show Waaris. Starting from 28 July, the show will be airing from Monday to Thursday at 11 pm.

Produced by Smriti Irani's Ugraya Entertainment, the show is a family drama set against the background of the underworld. It is the story of Rudra Pratap Singh who is an aging mafia don. Singh has two sons. The story, as the name suggests, is about the search of the true Waaris (heir) to the position created by the senior don.

Zee TV programming head Ajay Bhalwankar said, "It is an atypical illustrate of the "underworld" and its vicissitudes. Waaris comes as a perfect balm for those of you who are really craving for a different treatment. It is a hard hitting drama which deals with the ambiguities of life and portrays the stark reality of today. It's a mother's anguish over the unsafe lives of her children brought up in the confines of the underworld. "

Continue